The past winter was a mild one, and the service was performed with comparatively little interruption; but in looking through the returns with which the Italian Government have been so good as to furnish me, of the running of the Courier to Susa for the last six winters, I find that in January 1863 the delays were both frequent and serious, in consequence of storms on the Mont Cenis. The Courier that left St. Michel on the 20th of that month did not reach Susa until the 22d, as much as 48 hours 25 minutes having been occupied in the passage. On the 11th of March of the same year, 14 hours 30 minutes are recorded; but the Courier made the journey either on sledges or by diligence during the other five winters, in times varying from 7 hours 30 minutes as a minimum, to...
