Excerpt: . . . SERVICES AT THE dedication Of The jvii3ion Jshapee OF THE Church of the Saviour. At 3: 30 o'clock P. M. , the appointed hour of the DedicatoryServices, the New Chapel in Willow Place was crowded with the teachers and pupils of the School, and with the parents of the children and other friends of the Mission from the immediate and more distant parts of the city. The assembled audience, occupying all the settees and chairs, and filling the aisles, the small apartments connected with the main room, and every open space about the platform or near the entrance, was one of marked interest. In front of the desk, and in the centre, were the classes with their instructors, while around them, on all sides, were gathered the still larger number of those who had been drawn by their sympathy with the occasion to participate...
